Program Overview

This program provides participants with the skills and knowledge they need in order to effectively conduct a consistent, structured interview process to hire candidates that are the best “fit” with the job requirements and the organization’s culture.

Traditionally, organizations have selected candidates based only on their “fit” with the skills and knowledge required to perform successfully in a job. However, research has shown that the primary reason employees do not succeed after hire is their failure to “fit” with the organization’s culture, not a lack of necessary job skills and knowledge. An organization’s ability to select candidates for both job fit and culture fit ensures a significant improvement in employee performance, satisfaction, retention and commitment to the job and the organization. Hiring for both job fit and culture fit requires that interviewers use a consistent, structured process to explore for three critical dimensions: capability (skills and knowledge to do the job), commitment (personal motivation to do the job) and chemistry (individual values and work styles that are compatible with the organization’s culture).
Program Benefits

For the participants:

- Increased effectiveness at preparing for and conducting consistent, structured interviews
- Improved ability to evaluate job candidates fairly and objectively
- Improved ability to conduct a legally-compliant interview and evaluation

For the organization:

- Improved ability to hire the right people for the job
- Development of a larger pool of qualified talent to fill future job opportunities in the organization
- Improvement in employees’ performance, satisfaction and commitment to the organization
- Increased retention of qualified employees
- Decreased turnover due to lack of “fit” with the job and/or the organization’s culture
- Avoidance of legal issues associated with interview processes
- Creation of a positive external image for the organization

As you prepare for a session, be sure to select the agenda option that best meets your organization’s training needs, and review the agenda from beginning to end. Determine whether you will use any of the optional activities provided in the Facilitator Resources, and if so, where you will insert them. Agenda for One-Hour Overview

This agenda is designed to introduce important information about preparing for, conducting and evaluating a three-dimensional interview (a consistent, structured interview process that evaluates for three dimensions: capability, commitment and chemistry), using video and discussion. The Participant Materials are not used in this agenda option. You may want to provide participants with a copy of Handout #1 — Overview of the Three-Dimensional Interview: Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry, found in the Facilitator Resources, as a reference and take-away.

What you will need:
• Handout #1 — Overview of the Three-Dimensional Interview: Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry (optional)
• Markers
• Name tents

How to do it:
1. Get there first! This demonstrates organization and excitement—and sets a good example. Be sure the room is set up, the equipment works and everything is arranged the way you want it.
2. Greet participants as they enter the room.
3. Ask each participant to use a marker to write his/her name on a name tent (both sides) in letters that are big enough for everyone to read.
One-Hour Overview
Getting Focused

Time it takes: 10 minutes
What it is about: Introducing the learning objectives and what participants will experience and learn
What you will need: • Flipchart paper
How to do it:

1. Introduce yourself in whatever way you think is appropriate and welcoming.
2. Go over session logistics, including:
   • How long the session will take
   • Where the restrooms and emergency exits are located
   • Ground Rules
   • Parking Lot
3. Introduce the workshop. Say: Today you’re going to participate in a workshop that focuses on the structured interview process you need to follow and the skills you need to use to hire the right person for a job.
4. Ask: Why is it important for our organization to hire the right person for the job?
5. Post the participant’s responses on a flipchart.
6. Refer to the responses and say: Hiring the right person for the job is a critical factor in ensuring our organization’s success.

7. Share any available organization-specific information that will help further emphasize and position the importance of the workshop for participants.

8. Transition to Step 3 (The Three-Dimensional Interview Video and Discussion) by saying: Because the job interview process is the primary way we identify candidates who are the best fit for a position and for our organization, we need to conduct the interview effectively. The workshop today will help you identify the steps and skills involved in using the interview process effectively to help you hire the right person.
Step 3

One-Hour Overview
The Three-Dimensional Interview
Video and Discussion

Time it takes: 45 minutes
What it is about: Viewing the video and discussing key concepts
What you will need:
- Handout #1 – Overview of the Three-Dimensional Interview: Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry (optional)
- Video: The Three-Dimensional Interview: Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry

How to do it:
1. Introduce the video by saying: You’re going to see four friends—Rachel, Keith, Maggie and Greg—who are at Rachel’s house for an afternoon party. You’ll hear that one of Rachel’s employees just resigned, which gets the four friends talking about the three-dimensional interviewing process that will help her hire the right person. They’ll discuss what a three-dimensional interview is and the three steps involved in conducting a three-dimensional interview effectively. If you’d like, make some notes or jot down any questions you have on Handout #1 as you watch the video.
2. Start the video. Play it all the way to the end.

[Facilitator Note: If you are using the DVD, select The Three-Dimensional Interview (full program) menu option.]

3. Discuss the video by selecting questions from the following list:

- What is meant by a “three-dimensional interview”?
  [Possible Responses: a consistent, structured process that allows us to explore for three dimensions of job success—capability, commitment and chemistry; an interview that allows the interviewer to see all sides, get a complete picture of a candidate]

- How does the three-dimensional interview help you hire the right person for the job?
  [Possible Responses: it allows you to interview not just for a candidate’s ability to do the job but also for a candidate’s “fit” with the job and organization]

- What are the three steps in the three-dimensional interview?
  [Possible Responses: prepare for the interview; conduct the interview; evaluate the interview]

- What actions should you take to prepare for the three-dimensional interview?
  [Possible Responses: identify the specific skills, knowledge, attitudes, values and work styles needed for the job; develop legal interview questions; determine the order in which you will ask the questions; review
Step 4

One-Hour Overview
Wrap up the Session

Time it takes: 5 minutes
What it is about: Summarizing and evaluating the effectiveness of the training
What you will need: No materials required
How to do it:

1. Wrap up the session by saying:
   Please take 30 seconds to think about what we have covered today. What are two things you can take back to the job and implement immediately? Please turn to the person next to you and tell him/her what you plan to use.
   Now what were some of the things you said, or someone said to you, that you liked?
   [Ask for volunteers to share their ideas.]

2. Summarize by saying: Remember that hiring the right person for the job—someone who can do the job and fit within our organization’s culture—requires a consistent, structured interview process that evaluates for three dimensions: capability, commitment and chemistry.

3. Thank the participants for taking time out of their busy day to attend the session.
Agenda for Half-Day Workshop

This agenda provides ample time to discuss key concepts in detail. Times indicated below include two 15-minute breaks. Remember to add more time if you include any of the optional activities found in the Facilitator Resources. This agenda uses all pages of the Participant Materials.

What you will need:
• Participant Materials
• PowerPoint® Slides #3–7

How to do it:

3. Display Slide #4 and ask: What is this?
   [Possible Responses: a cube; a box]

4. Say: That’s right. This is a cube. In looking at the cube, what do you see now that you didn’t see before?
   [Possible Responses: more sides; all sides; a different view; a complete picture; what it really is]

5. Say: What’s the difference between the first object (the square) and this object (the cube)?
6. Say: In this slide, we’re getting a three-dimensional view of the object. What does the term “three-dimensional” mean?

[Possible Responses: depth, completeness, reality, you can see all sides]

7. Say: We all have a lot of “sides” to us as well. It’s important to remember that when we interview a candidate for a job. Here’s why:

What do you think is the number one reason that candidates don’t succeed on the job after they’re hired?

[Possible Responses: they weren’t a good “fit” with the job, organization or team; they didn’t have the right skills; they wanted something from the job/organization that the job/organization couldn’t provide; they or the employer had unrealistic expectations]

8. Say: Those are all valid reasons. But research has shown that the number one reason candidates don’t succeed after hire is their failure to gel with the culture of an organization, not because they lacked the necessary skills to do the job. Typically when
Half-Day Workshop
Preparing for the Three-Dimensional Interview

Time it takes: 60 minutes
What it is about: An overview of the three-dimensional interview; how to prepare for the three-dimensional interview
What you will need: • Participant Materials • PowerPoint® Slides #8–9 • Video: The Three-Dimensional Interview: Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry

How to do it:
1. Introduce the three-dimensional interview and how to prepare for it. Say: You’re going to see four friends—Rachel, Keith, Maggie and Greg—who are at Rachel’s house for an afternoon party. You’ll hear that one of Rachel’s employees just resigned, which gets the four friends talking about the three-dimensional interviewing process that will help her hire the right person.

2. Refer participants to their materials and review the directions. Say: Turn to pages 3–4 in your Participant Materials and review the discussion questions on those pages. As you watch this section of the video, make note of any questions or thoughts you have about the discussion questions.

3. Show the first section of the video. Stop the video at the disguised stop tape.

   [Facilitator Note: If you are using The Three-Dimensional Interview (sections) option on the DVD, play the segment entitled “Prepare.” The DVD will automatically stop when the segment is done.]

4. Review the video. Say: The characters in the video referred to a “structured” interview. What exactly is a “structured” interview?

   [Possible Responses: an interview that explores the three dimensions of capability, commitment and chemistry; an interview that is consistent; an interview that you prepare for]

5. Display Slide #8 and say: A “structured” interview is a three-dimensional interview—an interview that allows you to evaluate the candidate for the right combination of capability, commitment and chemistry for the job. Let’s discuss each of these components one at a time. The first component of a three-dimensional interview is “capability.” Why is it important to evaluate a candidate’s capability for the job?

   [Possible Responses: we need to find out if the candidate has the background and experience
Half-Day Workshop
Practice Preparing for the Three-Dimensional Interview

Time it takes: 60 minutes
What it is about: Identifying and preparing effective and legal interview questions; making final preparations for the interview
What you will need: • Participant Materials
• PowerPoint® Slide #9
How to do it:
1. Continue the discussion about interview questions. Refer participants to the Participant Materials and review the directions. Say: So you can become more familiar with the four types of questions we just reviewed, we’re going to do an exercise that will list several examples of interview questions and requires you to identify what type of question they are. Turn to pages 13–15 in your Participant Materials. Read each question. Then work with the members of your small group to identify what type of question it is and put a checkmark in the space provided. Also, determine what you can learn from a candidate by asking that question.
2. Help participants identify their partners.

[Allow 8–10 minutes for the activity.]

[Facilitator Note: If you need to save time at this point in the workshop, consider having half the participants work on questions #1–6 and the other half work on questions #7–12.]

3. Debrief the exercise. Ask: What type of question and what can you learn from:

- Question #1: Give me an example of a time when you had to deal with a difficult client or coworker and how you handled it?
  [Possible Responses: behavior-based question; you can learn about the candidate’s ability to deal with difficult people and if the candidate’s view of a “difficult” person would limit the candidate’s success on the job]

- Question #2: Completing projects on time is extremely important in our environment. How would you handle a situation where unforeseen delays had an impact on the completion of a new product website?
  [Possible Responses: situational question; you can learn about the candidate’s ability to manage change, shifting priorities and time]

- Question #3: How were my directions to our office?
  [Possible Responses: rapport-building question; you can learn about the candidate’s communication skills, interpersonal skills and ability to prepare for an important meeting]
Half-Day Workshop
Conducting the Three-Dimensional Interview

Time it takes: 45 minutes
What it is about: How to conduct the three-dimensional interview
What you will need:
• Participant Materials
• PowerPoint® Slides #10–11
• Video: The Three-Dimensional Interview: Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry

How to do it:

1. Introduce conducting the interview by showing Slide #10 and referring participants to the Participant Materials. Say: An effective three-dimensional interview follows a set structure. Turn to page 18 in your Participant Materials. A structured three-dimensional interview follows these five steps, which will help keep the interview focused and on track:

   • Step 1: Set the stage for an effective interview with the candidate by creating rapport and describing the interview process you’re going to follow.
   • Step 2: Explore the three dimensions by asking questions about the candidate’s capability, commitment and chemistry.
   • Step 3: Focus on organizational culture by describing the organization and evaluating... the candidate for fit with the culture.

- Step 4: Answer any questions the candidate may have.

- Step 5: Close the interview by telling the candidate what the next steps in the process are going to be.

2. Refer participants to the Participant Materials and review the directions. Say: Turn to pages 19–20 in your Participant Materials and review the discussion questions on those pages. As you watch this section of the video, make note of any questions or thoughts you have about the discussion questions.

3. Show the next section of the video. Stop the video at the disguised stop tape.

   [Facilitator Note: If you are using The Three-Dimensional Interview (sections) option on the DVD, play the segment entitled “Conduct.” The DVD will automatically stop when the segment is done]

4. Review the video. Say: Let’s discuss the actions you should take to follow each step in the structured interview process.
Step 7

Half-Day Workshop
Evaluating the Three-Dimensional Interview

Time it takes: 25 minutes
What it is about: How to evaluate the three-dimensional interview
What you will need:
- Participant Materials
- PowerPoint® Slide #12
- Video: The Three-Dimensional Interview:
  Evaluating for Capability, Commitment and Chemistry

How to do it:

1. Introduce evaluating the interview. Say: Once you have concluded all your interviews, the next step is to evaluate the interviews to determine who among all the candidates is the best fit for the job. That’s what we’re going to discuss next.

2. Refer participants to pages 23–24 in the Participant Materials. Say: Turn to pages 23–24 in your Participant Materials and review the discussion questions on those pages. As you watch this section of the video, make note of any questions or thoughts you have about the discussion questions.
3. Show the next section of the video. Show the video through to the end.

[Facilitator Note: If you are using The Three-Dimensional Interview (sections) option on the DVD, play the segment entitled “Evaluate.” The DVD will automatically stop when the segment is done.]

4. Review the video. Say: You may remember that one of Rachel’s concerns about this point in the interviewing process is the possibility of encountering legal issues or problems that may emerge when you select the final candidate. How can you avoid legal problems when you select a candidate for the job?

[Possible Responses: make sure you use a structured interview that's based on the job requirements; make sure you ask the same questions of every candidate; make sure the process is consistent with every person]

5. Continue the discussion. Say: Another way that you can avoid legal issues is by making sure you have good documentation to base your evaluation on. For example, a side note like this might come back to haunt you in the event of a lawsuit: “Looks great in a dress; clients will love her.” So what type of documentation might be considered “good”
Half-Day Workshop
Wrap up the Session

Time it takes: 10 minutes
What it is about: Formulating a plan of action and evaluating the effectiveness of the training
What you will need:
- Participant Materials
- Workshop Evaluation forms (found in Online Resources)

How to do it:
1. Wrap up the session by saying:
   Before we conclude, let’s take a look at the Parking Lot. Have we addressed everything on it? Are there any additional questions that need to be addressed?
   [Answer any questions.]

2. Refer participants to their materials, Focus on the Future and Suggested Actions, pages 28–29.
   Briefly describe the purpose and contents of the material, and ask them to complete the Focus on the Future form.
   [Allow five minutes.]

3. Ask participants if any of them are willing to share their plans from the Focus on the Future form or any highlights of what they have learned today.
4. Ask participants to fill out the Post-Assessment on page 1 in their Participant Materials by saying: It’s time to look at the assessment again on page 1 of your materials. Please fill out the Post-Assessment column and then compare it to your ratings from the Pre-Assessment column.
